Task 2 (30 marks)

You recently took a relative on holiday. Your relative has limited mobility so you checked in advance that the hotel would be suitable. However, once you arrived you discovered that the hotel was not suitable and you had to go elsewhere.

You decide to email the hotel manager (manager@cfhotel.coz) to complain about your experience, explaining what was wrong with the hotel and what problems were caused by having to move. You should state what you expect the hotel to do.

Write the email.

Subject: Complaint Regarding Unsuitable Accommodations

Dear Hotel manager,

I am writing to complain about my recent experience at your hotel. I booked a stay for my elderly grandmother and myself, specifically checking in advance that your hotel could accommodate someone with limited mobility. However, when we arrived, it became clear that the hotel was not suitable for my grandmother's needs.

Firstly, the room we were given was not accessible. The bathroom lacked the necessary grab bars to support people with limited mobility and the doorway was too narrow for my grandmother's wheelchair to pass through. Secondly, there were steps leading to the main entrance, and the lift was out of order. This made it extremely difficult for my grandma to move around the hotel.

Due to these issues, we were forced to leave and find another hotel at extremely short notice, thus causing significant inconvenience and stress. We were not only both upset, but we also had to pay extra for last-minute accommodation.

Following this inconvenience, I expect a full refund for our booking due to the unsuitable conditions and the trouble caused. Additionally, I suggest that you review your hotel's facilities and accessibility information to prevent future guests from experiencing similar issues.

I look forward to your prompt response and resolution of this matter.

Kind regards,
Pamela West
