A report into a competitor's store

Date: 01/03/2020

This report will cover the findings of a visit to a compeitior's store. It will look at the following areas:

- Appearance and tidiness of the store
- Availability of staff to help
- Customer service skills and attitude of the staff
- Stock availability.

The store visited was Honley's Fashion on Ranston Road. The visit was on Saturday the 29th of February, at 2.30pm.

Appearance and tidiness of the store

Worked Example – Sample Paper 3 Level 2 – Good Pass

The window displays were well presented, showing a mix of men's and ladies clothes. They also had posters advertising up to 75% off some clothes. 75% was in huge orange letters, but the 'up to' was so small it could hardly be seen.

The inside of the store was very bright and had a lot of space. There were displays of clothes on different types of display stand. This made it feel like you were looking at something new in every direction that you looked.

Availability of staff to help

There was one member of staff always at the front door, asking if the customer needed any help with anything. There were also two other staff on the shop floor and two more behind the tills. What was really good was that the staff came up to me to ask if I needed help.

Customer Service skills and attitude

The staff were very friendly and all of them smiled when they came up to a customer. They were very helpful and even suggested other items I could try that would match the first thing I was trying.

Stock availability

I made a point of asking if they had different sizes of the trousers I was trying on and they had every size I asked for apart from a size 8.

Overall

This is a good store that has lots of stock and very good staff.

Commentary

This is a functional report that addresses the requirements of the task fully.

Format and structuring of the report are strong, with a clear title, the date, an introduction that makes use of bullet points, clear subheadings to mark new report topics and a brief concluding sentence.

All information is clearly communicated, and the cohesion is aided by organisational markers within the text and the overall format and structure. The length is suitable and close to the guidance given in the question brief, and the language and register are wholly appropriate to the task and the level.

Worked Example – Sample Paper 3 Level 2 – Good Pass

Spelling, punctuation and grammar are all very strong, with only the occasional spelling error and one missing apostrophe. Where required, commas were used to separate independent clauses, and there were two occasions when apostrophes were correctly used.

Question 2

You work for WeSell2U, an online seller of films, books and TV box sets. When a sequel to a film or a book is due to be released, or a new episode of a TV drama is coming out, your company posts a blog explaining what happened previously and describing the main characters.

We suggest you write about 300 words.

Game of Thrones – Season 9 Coming Soon

That's right – this exciting news is brought to you by WeSell2U, your one-stop online retailer for all films, books and TV box sets.

Everyone thought Season 8 was the climax to the hugely popular fantasy drama. But let's look back and see what happened. Daenerys, the rightful Queen to the Iron Throne, brought her army to the aid of John Snow and the armies in the north. Her two remaining dragons were thought to be the final pieces in the puzzle that would help mankind defeat the army of the dead. But in the end, it was a single thrust of a dragonglass blade by Arya Stark into the Prince of the Dead to instantly lay waste his whole army that saved the day.

All that remained was to finally, once and for all (or so we thought) sort out who would sit on The Iron Throne and rule the Seven Kingdoms. Would it be Cersei Lannister who betrayed those in the north by refusing to join in the fight against the dead, or would it be Daenerys Targaryen who has always believed herself to be the rightful Queen of the Seven Kingdoms?

Worked Example – Sample Paper 3 Level 2 – Good Pass

But wait, it turned out that John Snow, her former love, was actually her nephew and the rightful heir to the throne. The dragons burn the whole city of Kings' Landing, including much of the civilian population, to John Snow's horror. However, Daenerys finds out that John Snow released Cersei's brother from captivity, betraying Daenerys. Would that clear her way to the throne? Well, just in case you haven't seen Season 8 yet (also available from We Sell2U), I won't reveal everything!

Commentary

A very strong response. It addresses the brief very well and adapts its language to suit the purpose and audience. Complex sentences are well constructed, and cohesion and coherence are established through logical sequencing, a maintenance of register and organisational markers. Detail is thorough and the length is suitable to the task and very close to the suggested word count.

Spelling, punctuation and grammar are also very strong, with only the very occasional error in the use of commas. A range of punctuation markers have been successfully used throughout.

I am going to the till area to ask if there can help me but threr is only one persons and she can leave the till. I ask her if she can get one other staff to help but she is saying she can leave the area to find someone so I go and look my self I find another person and ask him if I can try on the cloths that is rapped in a packet and she says no you must only try on something that is not in a packet. He is not helpful with me at all. I pick up a ladies blous to try on and take it to the changing rooms which are very messy. The lady don't look at me once. I could of nicked anythink. I ask her for a different sized and she is quiet rude and lloks as if she carnt be bothered which is rubbish. She is rather being on her phone texting mates and she must not work in a shop wiv that attitude.

Commentary

The candidate has attempted to address the brief, but formatting and structuring of the report are limited, consisting of a title and one paragraph break. This would have been greatly enhanced by the use of subheadings and additional paragraph breaks as a minimum.

Language and register are not wholly appropriate throughout. For example, …and lloks as if she carnt be bothered which is rubbish. She is rather being on her phone texting mates and she must not work in a shop wiv that attitude. In addition, the use of the present tense throughout is inappropriate, as this is a report about a visit that has taken place.

There are some instances of a lack of clarity resulting from errors in the text. For instance, the omission of the word 'not' when referring to the till operator's ability to leave the till causes the reader to have to re-read the sentence to try to make sense of it. This is compounded by a similar omission later in the text.

Sample Paper 3 – Level 2 Worked Example – Borderline Script

The length is slightly short, but acceptable. The detail could be better, and some significant details are omitted that would be expected in the report, for example the name of the store visited and the date of the visit. Although there is an attempt to cover customer service skills and attitude of the staff, it is relatively brief.

Punctuation is limited to capital letters and full stops to demarcate sentences, although some errors are made in this too. Apostrophes are omitted where required, and one is incorrectly inserted. There is no evidence that the candidate can correctly use commas to separate clauses.

Spelling is also relatively weak, with very few ambitious words spelt correctly. There are frequent errors in relatively simple, regular words.

Grammar is also relatively weak. Errors include using the wrong form of the they/their/there and incorrect subject-verb agreement.

Commentary

There is no attempt to induce any excitement in terms of language used; it is merely a recounting. The task is on behalf of a website that sells products, so language should be adapted to reflect the purpose. Simple and compound sentences are used the majority of the time, and at level 2 candidates should employ a variety of sentence structures as befits the tasks, including complex sentences.

Sample Paper 3 – Level 2 Worked Example – Borderline Script

[BORDERLINE]

However, the candidate is attempting to address the question brief although the response is relatively short. There is clarity of information and a coherence to the response, and it contains most of the required detail.

Other than paragraphing, there is no attempt to format and structure the response in an appropriate way for hosting on the company's website. A title is required as a minimum.

Spelling is largely accurate, but there are very few ambitious words for level 2.

Punctuation is weak and does not show a range of use. Possessive apostrophes are omitted on all occasions, and there is an absence of commas to separate clauses where they are required. There are also errors made when trying to use speech marks.

Grammar is generally accurate, but there are several errors, including verb-tense agreement and inconsistent use of tense.

Commentary

The candidate has not produced a formal report. The format and structure are more akin to a note or a letter. Some of the detail is present, but there is a lack of depth in the detail and the overall length (142 words) is short (less than 50% of the instruction guide to write approximately 300 words). The language, where correct, is simple, and there are very few correct complex sentences. Although it is possible to understand the writing in terms of clarity, it is not a very effective piece of writing in terms of purpose and audience, with very few attempts, if any, to establish cohesion through the use of organisational markers. Overall composition is band 2.

Spelling is limited due to frequent errors in simple words and very little ambition in terms of vocabulary. There is very little evidence of punctuation beyond sentence demarcation, so the range is limited, and grammar errors are frequent to the extent that there are very few wholly accurate sentences.

Commentary

Low on detail but an attempt to cover the brief. However, at only 130 words long, it is regarded as being too short. Format, structure and paragraphing are poor. There is no attempt to inform the reader of the text content through use of a title and no paragraph breaks are present. Logical sequencing leads to some confusion and a lack of clarity as the candidate appears to revert to plot details of the first instalment in the last sentence. There is also a lack of clarity in the identity of Sarah. The candidate struggles with accurate complex sentence construction and, while the register is appropriate, the use of language is very poor.

Spelling is correct only some of the time, with only one or two ambitious words spelt correctly and many errors in relatively simple words. Grammar is also very poor, with many errors of verb-tense agreement, subject-verb agreement, word order and omitted articles.

Worked Example – Sample Paper 3 – Fail

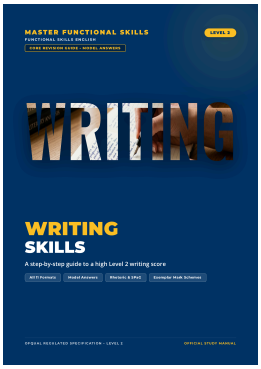

Punctuation consists of simple sentence demarcation and capitalisation of some proper nouns.
