And the winning team is...

In 2011 Sainsbury's School Games was set up. The aim was to encourage young people to take part in competitive team sports such as football and netball. More than half the schools in England agreed to support this scheme. Between 2013 and 2016, the government gave £450 million to bring this about.

Following the success of the London Olympics in 2012, the government announced that competitive team sports should be made compulsory for all young school children. A spokesperson said: 'We need to get children playing all sorts of competitive sports, such as hockey and basketball, from a young age'.

So what was the thinking behind this? People believe playing team sports teaches children the personal skills they require for the future. In a team sport, they have to work together with all sorts of people, unlike in golf or swimming. They also learn to put the good of the team first. In later years many will find these experiences useful in a range of jobs, for example in the emergency services.

Playing team sports teaches children that life is not always perfect. In team sports young people learn to accept the decision of the referee, even when they do not agree with it. Obeying instructions is essential in many jobs, for example in the hospitality industry: trainee chefs need to do what they are told. Of course, playing team sports also keeps children fit and healthy. A healthy child is a happy child.

Children learn to be confident through playing team sports. This helps them become successful employees who can show initiative. Playing in a team makes children appreciate the contributions made by other people. This is especially helpful in the caring professions and the construction industry.

Dear Parent / Carer,

Good news! We have now raised almost all the money required to build a new sports hall. This will increase the number of sports we offer and will benefit everyone. Unfortunately, raising the last £10,000 is proving difficult and we appeal for your continued support.

We would like the building work to begin at the end of next month, so we need to raise as much money as we can in the next few weeks. Thank you to Kindon Construction for offering to provide scaffolding free of charge. We are also looking for a local company to sponsor the fun run planned for Saturday 21st October.

I would ask each parent / carer to help in some way. Could you organise a bake sale, a car wash or a car boot sale? If so, please contact Parent Governor Catherine Woods on 07700 909087. Quiz nights are always very popular. Can someone organise a quiz night and is there a local company willing to provide the prizes?

Teaching Assistant Tom Barrett continues to raise money through organising the recycling of old mobiles, ink cartridges, aluminium cans and plastic bottles. Please leave all items for recycling in the containers outside the caretaker's office, beside the disabled parking bay.

We are delighted that Mel Singh, a former pupil of the school now studying art at college, has designed a mug to raise funds. These have been very popular and there are just 50 mugs left. One mug costs £8 or £30 for a pack of four. Mel is holding four pottery classes in the school, over the next four Thursday evenings. Details of prices and times can be found on the school website and in the Kindon Daily News, which is advertising our events free of charge.

Please help in any way you can.

Yours sincerely,

Sam Jordan
Chairperson, Sports Hall Fundraising Committee
