Information

Letter of the Day

Computers and schools

We should ban the use of computers in classrooms.

Computers do not improve learning but distract students who use them to play games and watch videos. Even when computers are used appropriately, evidence shows they are not as effective as learning directly from the teacher.

Most young people have grown up surrounded by technology and have developed better ICT skills than their teachers.

It is time to end this obsession with computers and teach our children something they do not already know.
