1. Write an article

You are a writer for a website about technology.

You have recently purchased a new piece of technology for work/leisure or both. This could be a computer, phone or games console, for example.

Write an article for your readers. The article should describe your experience with the new piece of technology and explain why you would or would not recommend it.

Your article should be at least 250 words.

The technology can be real or imagined.

2. Write an email

You are a local resident.

The town you live in has received funding to improve the town centre. The funding is from national government. They want the council to show that they have consulted local people. The council has therefore asked local residents to offer ideas about how to spend the money.

Write an email to the council to give ideas. The email should explain how you think they should spend the money and describe how this would benefit your town.

The council's email address is ideas@council.email

Your email should be at least 250 words.

You can use a real or imagined town.
