Task 1

Read this text from a magazine article.

"People place a lot of emphasis on the plight of wild animals and insects these days. They worry more about protecting hedgehogs, butterflies and frogs than about the important issues: making sure humans get a nutritious diet, young people get a decent education and job, and we sort out corrupt politicians."

Your task:

Write an entry for your online blog in reaction to this statement.

Write approximately 250 - 300 words

BLOG POST: BALANCING DIGITAL CONVENIENCE WITH REAL-WORLD CONNECTION

Have you ever noticed how quickly a well-meaning article can spark a heated debate? After reading this week's magazine feature on modern lifestyles, I felt compelled to share my perspective on how technology and community habits shape our daily wellbeing.

On one hand, it is undeniable that digital tools have made work, shopping, and communication dramatically faster. Flexible working and instant messaging save hours of commuting every week, giving families more time together. However, convenience should never come at the expense of genuine human interaction or local high streets.

In my own neighbourhood, small independent cafes and libraries remain the heartbeat of the community. When we choose to engage face to face, we build trust, combat loneliness, and support local livelihoods. Rather than rejecting modern progress or surrendering entirely to screens, the healthiest path lies in conscious balance.

What do you think? Share your thoughts in the comments below!

Task 2

There is a large piece of unused ground owned by the council in your local area.

There has been a bid from a local company to buy the land and build four new flats, a restaurant and a carpark.

There has been another bid from a group of local residents who want the land to be used as a community garden, which would be a place for all residents in the area and could be managed by themselves.

Your task:

Write a letter to your local newspaper in which you argue for building EITHER the development of flats, restaurants and a carpark OR the community garden.

You should cover the following:

- Details about yourself and why you are interested
- Which idea you think is the best and why
- Which idea you think is not the best and why

Dear Editor,

Re: Future of the Unused Council Land on Station Road

As a lifelong resident of Brookfield and a parent of two young children, I am writing to strongly support the residents' proposal to transform the unused council land on Station Road into a thriving community garden.

While the commercial bid for four flats, a restaurant, and a car park promises short-term profit, our town centre already suffers from severe traffic congestion and limited parking. Adding another car park and late-night restaurant beside a residential street would increase noise, air pollution, and road safety risks for local schoolchildren.

By contrast, a resident-managed community garden would provide a safe, green sanctuary for people of all ages. Volunteers could grow fresh vegetables, host outdoor school workshops, and create peaceful seating areas for elderly neighbours—all at minimal cost to the council. I urge readers and councillors alike to back the community garden.

Yours faithfully,

Priya Sharma
