Subject: Healthy Living Week

Dear Lukas, [Polite greeting]

I am writing in response to your notice about the upcoming Healthy Living Week at our community centre. I think this is a great idea to bring local residents together and encourage healthier lifestyles. Personally, I would really like to take part in the healthy eating workshops and the martial arts training. As someone who works full-time, I often find it tough to prepare healthy meals during busy weekdays; therefore, learning simple, affordable recipes would be very helpful. In addition, I have always wanted to try martial arts to improve my fitness, balance, and discipline in a safe, friendly environment.

[Purpose / View] [Session Choices] [Semicolon ;]

Regarding extra activities, I would like to suggest adding gentle yoga sessions and outdoor walking groups to the schedule. Many older residents and beginners might feel put off by fast-paced sports like football or street dance; as a result, gentle morning yoga would offer a welcoming alternative to stay flexible and reduce everyday stress. Also, an organised evening walk around the local park would allow neighbours of all fitness levels to chat and socialise while enjoying fresh air.

[Proposed Additions] [Inclusive Alternatives] [Complex sentence]

These activities would be very popular because they suit different age groups and abilities across our neighbourhood. Having a wide range of options ensures that everyone feels included, from teenagers to busy parents and older residents. In addition, offering free or low-cost taster sessions will encourage people on tight budgets to get involved without worrying about cost. I am confident that these new sessions will attract a great turnout and build lasting enthusiasm for health in our area.

[Community Appeal]

[Inclusivity Focus]

Best regards,

Jordan Bennett

Catering Service Consultation: Canteen Menu Proposal [Form Title]

I am writing to share my views regarding the proposal to ban meat and fish in our canteen. While I care about protecting the environment and understand why people want to cut down on meat, I disagree with introducing a complete ban. In my view, the canteen should encourage healthier, greener choices through variety and education rather than through strict rules.

[Clear Stance]

[Balanced View]

There are several clear reasons why a total ban would not work well. Firstly, many students and staff rely on meat and fish for their daily protein and dietary needs; removing these choices completely could leave many people feeling left out. Secondly, if the canteen only serves vegetarian meals, many people will simply walk to nearby fast-food shops or supermarkets during lunch breaks. This would reduce canteen sales and lead to people eating unhealthy takeaways instead.

[Nutritional Needs]

[Semicolon ;]

[Economic Impact]

Instead of a complete ban, I recommend a sensible compromise. For example, the catering team could introduce 'Meat-Free Mondays' and offer a wider choice of tasty, affordable plant-based meals each day. Giving out free tasting samples would also let students and staff try new dishes before buying. This positive approach would encourage everyone to eat more plant-based food willingly while still giving people a fair choice.

[Sensible Proposal]

[Tasting Idea]

[Clear Conclusion]
