Commentary

The candidate has not produced a formal report. The format and structure are more akin to a note or a letter. Some of the detail is present, but there is a lack of depth in the detail and the overall length (142 words) is short (less than 50% of the instruction guide to write approximately 300 words). The language, where correct, is simple, and there are very few correct complex sentences. Although it is possible to understand the writing in terms of clarity, it is not a very effective piece of writing in terms of purpose and audience, with very few attempts, if any, to establish cohesion through the use of organisational markers. Overall composition is band 2.

Spelling is limited due to frequent errors in simple words and very little ambition in terms of vocabulary. There is very little evidence of punctuation beyond sentence demarcation, so the range is limited, and grammar errors are frequent to the extent that there are very few wholly accurate sentences.

Commentary

Low on detail but an attempt to cover the brief. However, at only 130 words long, it is regarded as being too short. Format, structure and paragraphing are poor. There is no attempt to inform the reader of the text content through use of a title and no paragraph breaks are present. Logical sequencing leads to some confusion and a lack of clarity as the candidate appears to revert to plot details of the first instalment in the last sentence. There is also a lack of clarity in the identity of Sarah. The candidate struggles with accurate complex sentence construction and, while the register is appropriate, the use of language is very poor.

Spelling is correct only some of the time, with only one or two ambitious words spelt correctly and many errors in relatively simple words. Grammar is also very poor, with many errors of verb-tense agreement, subject-verb agreement, word order and omitted articles.

Punctuation consists of simple sentence demarcation and capitalisation of some proper nouns.
