Markers' Briefing Note

Marks in the English Writing component are awarded for 'independent understanding of written language in specific contexts.' Whilst the learner may use the content of the scenarios to inform their writing, the writing activities do not assess reading skills or interpretation of any stimuli.

Learners are expected to produce an open response. Depending on the context of the activity, a learner may support either side of an argument, or adopt any well-reasoned stance, using the scenarios and/or their own ideas and experiences. What should be assessed is their ability to do so whilst meeting all of the subject content.

Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar (SPaG)
Spelling
One of the following: • spelling of simple, everyday words, including some plurals will be correct but there may be frequent errors in more complex words. Errors may affect meaning (1 mark) • spelling mostly correct (including some specialist words, some ambitious words and those with unstressed syllables, multi-syllabic vowels and consonants). Errors do not undermine meaning (2 marks) • spelling is accurate (including specialist words, some uncommon words, words with complex sound/symbol relationships and words with unstressed syllables. Competence should be shown in the spelling of possessive pronouns, prefixes, suffixes and homophones). Errors are 'one offs' which do not affect meaning. (3 marks) (0 marks should be given for no awardable content).	3	SC22 (3)
Punctuation
One of the following: • the punctuation at the beginning and end of sentences is correct with some attempt at punctuating complex sentences. Some inconsistent use of other punctuation marks. Errors may affect meaning (1 mark) • a range of punctuation is mostly correct (including the punctuation of sentences and use of commas where appropriate). Apostrophes are accurate most of the time. Errors do not undermine meaning (2 marks) • a wide range of punctuation has been used accurately (this may include colons, commas, inverted commas, apostrophes and quotation marks) in a variety of sentence structures, and used for effect. (3 marks) (0 marks should be given for no awardable content).	3	SC20 (3)
Grammar
One of the following: • basic grammatical constructions are used accurately most of the time (including definite and indefinite articles). There may be some inaccuracies that may affect meaning (1 mark) • a range of grammatical constructions is mostly accurate and ensures the clarity of the document. There may be some weakness in the use of modality devices. Errors do not undermine meaning (2 marks) • a full range of grammatical constructions is used accurately throughout which adds to the effectiveness of the document (including subject-verb agreement, consistent use of tense, definite and indefinite articles, as well as modality devices). (3 marks) (0 marks should be given for no awardable content).	3	SC21 (3)
